Borneo, Celebes, and Aru are three of the most remote and beautiful islands in the world. They are home to a diverse range of wildlife, including orangutans, tarsiers, and komodo dragons. In this book, award-winning photographer and author Tim Laman takes readers on a journey to these incredible islands, capturing their beauty and wildlife in stunning photographs.

Laman's journey begins in Borneo, the third largest island in the world. He travels through the rainforest, where he encounters orangutans, gibbons, and other primates. He also visits the Kinabatangan River, a rich riparian ecosystem home to crocodiles, hippos, and proboscis monkeys.

From Borneo, Laman travels to Celebes, an island known for its unique wildlife. He visits the Tangkoko Nature Reserve, where he sees tarsiers, the world's smallest primates. He also hikes to the summit of Mount Klabat, the highest mountain in Celebes.

Laman's final destination is Aru, a group of islands located in the Arafura Sea. Aru is home to a variety of marine life, including manta rays, sea turtles, and dugongs. Laman snorkels and dives in the crystal-clear waters of Aru, capturing stunning images of the underwater world.
