Paul "Bear" Bryant is one of the most successful college football coaches of all time. He won six national championships at the University of Alabama, and his teams were known for their tough, physical play.

Bryant was born in Moro Bottom, Arkansas, in 1913. He played football at the University of Alabama and was a two-time All-American. After graduating, he coached at several high schools before becoming the head coach at the University of Kentucky in 1946.

Bryant's teams at Kentucky were successful, but he really made his mark at Alabama. He took over the Crimson Tide program in 1958, and within a few years, he had them competing for national championships.

Bryant's teams won national championships in 1961, 1964, 1965, 1973, 1978, and 1979. He also won 13 Southeastern Conference championships.

Bryant's teams were known for their tough defense and running game.

Bryant retired from coaching in 1982. He died in 1983 at the age of 69.

Legacy

Paul Bear Bryant is considered one of the greatest college football coaches of all time. He won more games than any other coach in NCAA history, and his teams won six national championships.

Bryant's legacy extends beyond his wins and championships. He was a master motivator and teacher. He demanded excellence from his players, and he helped them reach their full potential.

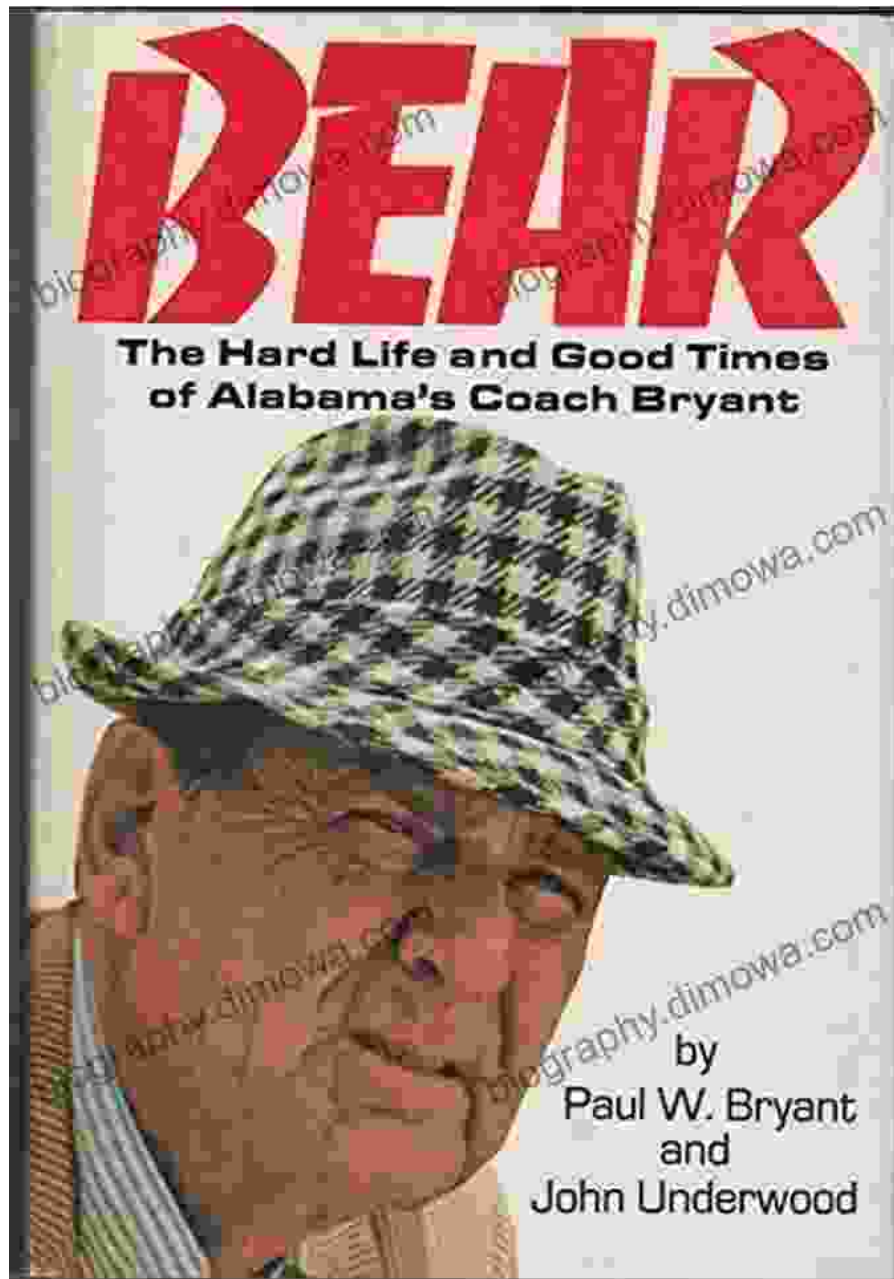

Bryant's impact on the game of football is still felt today. His teams played with a toughness and intensity that is still admired by fans and coaches alike.
