FM 54-30 Corps Support Groups is the official United States Army field manual for close combat. It is used by all branches of the U.S. military, as well as by law enforcement and security agencies around the world. FM 54-30 provides a comprehensive overview of the principles and techniques of close combat, including hand-to-hand combat, knife fighting, and the use of improvised weapons.

This article provides a detailed analysis of FM 54-30, focusing on the techniques and tactics used by the elite Delta Force. Delta Force is the U.S. Army's premier counter-terrorism unit, and its operators are some of the most highly trained and experienced close combat fighters in the world. FM 54-30 is an essential resource for anyone who wants to learn the close combat techniques used by Delta Force.

The Principles of Close Combat

FM 54-30 begins by outlining the principles of close combat. These principles include:

- Surprise: Attacking your opponent when they are not expecting it.
- Aggression: Taking the initiative and attacking your opponent with force and determination.

- Control: Maintaining control of your opponent's body and movements.
- Deception: Using feints and other deceptive techniques to mislead your opponent.
- Simplicity: Using simple and effective techniques that are easy to execute under stress.

These principles are the foundation of all close combat techniques, and they are essential for success in any close quarters encounter.

Close Combat Techniques

FM 54-30 provides instruction on a wide range of close combat techniques, including:

- Hand-to-hand combat: Techniques for unarmed combat, including punches, kicks, throws, and grappling.
- Knife fighting: Techniques for using a knife in combat, including both offensive and defensive techniques.
- Improvised weapons: Techniques for using improvised weapons, such as sticks, rocks, and bottles, in combat.

These techniques are taught in a progressive manner, starting with basic techniques and gradually progressing to more advanced techniques. FM 54-30 also provides guidance on how to apply these techniques in different combat situations.

Delta Force Tactics

Delta Force is known for its use of innovative and effective close combat tactics. These tactics are designed to give Delta Force operators an advantage in any close quarters encounter. Some of the most common Delta Force tactics include:

- Dynamic entry: A technique for entering a room or building quickly and quietly, while maintaining control of the situation.
- Close quarters battle (CQB): A technique for fighting in close quarters, such as inside a building or vehicle.
- Hostage rescue: A technique for rescuing hostages from captivity.
- Counter-terrorism: A technique for preventing or responding to terrorist attacks.

These tactics are taught to all Delta Force operators, and they are used in a variety of combat situations.

FM 54-30 Corps Support Groups is the definitive guide to close combat techniques and tactics used by the elite Delta Force. This comprehensive analysis provides an in-depth exploration of the manual, offering insights into the strategies and skills that make Delta Force one of the most effective fighting forces in the world. Whether you are a military professional, a law enforcement officer, or a civilian interested in self-defense, FM 54-30 is an essential resource.
